PRESS RELEASE

CRI Continues Rapid Growth into Outsourcing Recruitment Market

Enhanced Service Offerings, Global Expansion, Name Change—Reflect Commitment to Meeting Client Changing Needs

TORRANCE, CA (June 21, 2004) — CRI, an Inc. 500 best practice recruitment solutions outsourcing firm and trusted partner of Fortune 1000 and emerging growth companies, announced today its customer base continues to grow globally, citing Edward Jones (US, Canada and England) as its newest recruitment outsourcing customer. The premier outsourcing recruitment firm which touts many other noted enterprises including KB Home, Sprint, Deloitte and Touche, General Electric, Motorola, and General Dynamics, moved its world headquarters to Torrance, California six months ago. To accommodate growing client needs and accelerated demands for CRI's best practice recruitment services, the firm doubled office space at its new location again last week.

With corporate commitment to be a global leader in quality-driven, best practice recruiting, staffing and on-boarding services, CRI now stands for Corporate Resource International. Formerly Contract Recruiting Incorporated, the firm's name change showcases the evolution of the company's best practice client offerings—and the continued confidence and acceptance placed in CRI by Fortune 500 firms .

“CRI continues to expand global presence and build competitive advantage through its suite of products and services that align real-time recruitment sourcing with a systematic process for hiring and staffing,” says Ladd Richland, CEO, CRI. “Our new name reflects CRI's ongoing commitment across industry sectors to be a best practice resource for organizations focused on business goals and process. It also drives home the fact that we really do measure our success through our customers' success in building talent-driven organizations.”
